WASHINGTON'S ACCOUNTS.—The New York Tribune's Washington correspondence has the following interesting item:

The Treasury Department officials, in making arrangements for the better preservation of the valuable papers, have lately removed from a vault, in which they have laid for more than half a century, the accounts of General George Washington while he was commander-in-chief of the American army, during the Revolutionary War. The accounts are stated in General Washington's own handwriting, and are written in clear and bold characters, and arranged with systematic accuracy. The title-page of the accounts bears the following inscription: "Account of G. Washington with the United States, commencing June 1775, and ending June 1783." Entries were made of every item of his household expenses, and for all moneys used in transportation of troops, and in fact every expense incidental to the Revolutionary war. Reference to his history will show that Gen. Washington although offered a compensation while serving as Commander-in-Chief, repeatedly declined to accept any, as these accounts show. Gen. Washington's determination not to cover up and take advantage of the oversight of other government officers, is well illustrated by the following entry and the marginal note in explanation of the same. It appears as follows:

By cash, £138.16s. Note.—This sum stands in my account as a credit to the public, but I can and do not charge it against any of the public officers, whose mistake I know it, but wish it could be ascertained, as I have no desire to injure or be injured.

Washington also submitted a table giving the amount of money received at different times, giving its nominal value and value by depreciation, from which it appears that in October, 1777, $1,000 was worth $911; in January, 1778, $2,000 was worth $1,370. The market value of money continued to depreciate, so that in March, 1790, $2,000 was quoted at $200, at $500, and at $50. The final note at the end of his statement is as follows:

I received moneys on private accounts in 1777, and since which, except such sums that I had occasion now and then to apply to private uses, were all expended in the public service, and through hurry, I suppose, and the perplexity of business, for I know not how else to account for the deficiency, I have omitted to charge, while every debt against me is here credited.

BUSINESS PURSUITS.—Happily for us, all honest callings are beginning to be regarded as alike respectable, and young men are fast learning the lesson that it is the man who honors the calling and not the calling that honors the man. Indeed the most prominent, influential and successful men in this, as in almost all other communities, are those engaged in the pursuits of business, commercial, manufacturing and mechanical. They have prospered as professional men rarely do in these days. They have made the large fortunes and occupy the palatial residences that adorn every city. They are the money kings. They control in society, in politics and in the business affairs of the country. This has been the case at the North for many years, and it is rapidly spreading through the South. Our best young men, those of talent, education and character, are now to be found adorning the walks of business instead of pining and starving in the professions. This is rapidly growing. It is becoming fashionable to give young men a systematic, industrial education and then put them into business. Those thus engaged have a much better chance of making a fortune in this country, where so many sources of material wealth still lie undeveloped, than those who follow the professions. They have a limitless field before them and the rewards yielded are much greater than in the professions. It is not surprising, therefore, that these pursuits are absorbing the talent and enterprise of the country. —Richmond Whig.

HUNTING DOWN A MILLIONAIRE.—The following story is told by the San Francisco Chronicle of Meigs, the great railway prince of Peru, who ran away in debt from San Francisco some years ago.

Mrs. Joselyn is a washerwoman, and works very hard for her living. In the palms, days of Harry Meigs she deposited with him no less an amount than $2,500, and when Meigs and her money were gone, the time in which a woman could lay up so large a sum from the profits of her business was gone also. But she gashed on, and kept her head above water. Some two or three months ago she read in the Overland Monthly, or some other publication, of how much money her old banker had made in South America by building railroads, and with a beautiful faith in human nature, which cannot be too highly commended, she embarked upon the Panama steamer, and wended her way to the sultry South, where millions now hold sway. She sought the millionaire in the garret, and so graphically described in the Overland, and presented her bank book and told her tale. Meigs listened, and when she had finished he handed her a check for the amount of the deposit and interest from its date to the time of payment. She departed a wealthier and a happier woman, and returned to San Francisco, where she arrived by the last steamer.

DRAMATIC ANECDOTE.—Macready's arrogance is well known to all who have had any dealings with him. Neat tells a capital story, in which an actor carried his obedience to a great dramatic bully to a retributive extent. — Macready, the manager of the Astor Opera House, where Macready was playing his last American engagement, had requested that what the great Macready told them to do they were to follow implicitly.

A simple minded actor by the name of Wemyss performed the part of Guildenstern, and thus carried out the tragedian's commands: Hamlet—I prithee, sir, play upon this pipe. Guildenstern—My Lord, I cannot.

Hamlet (assuming a severe air)—I do beseech thee to do it.

Guildenstern—Well, since you insist upon it, I will do my best, though I am but a poor hand at the flageolet.

Then, to the utter dismay of Macready and the merriment of the vast audience, Mr. Wemyss played "Yankee Doodle," and was going to give them "Bobbing Around," when Macready wrested the pipe from Guildenstern's mouth, and glared at him like a tiger.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

DR. SIMMONS'
The symptoms of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general constive, sometimes alternating with laxity. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility and low spirits. Sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the liver is generally the organ most involved. Cure the liver with

THE FOLLOWING WILL BE READ
WITH INTEREST:
Under date of April 26th, 1871, Dr. HENRY J. ROGERS, 68 Sharp street, Baltimore, an eminent physician, writes regarding

CRYSTAL DISCOVERY:
"It affords me much pleasure to bear testimony as to the efficacy of your Crystal Discovery. Some years since, while in India, I suffered from a severe fever peculiar to the country. On my recovery, a patch of hair on the left side of my head became perfectly white, without at all affecting the remainder. To remove this unsightly appearance, I had recourse to various preparations, both in Europe and in this country; but they all had one great defect—they dyed the hair black. Now, with your Crystal Discovery, I can get the desired shade—the natural color of my hair being dark brown. I consider your Crystal Discovery the best preparation I know of."

Yours truly,
HENRY J. ROGERS.

Now as the fact becomes more patent every day that the theoric dirty and filthy preparations advertised as Renewers, Restoratives, &c., are but compounds of Sugar of Lead and Sulphur, and therefore should be shunned by all who value their health, it is scarcely a matter of surprise that the demand for NATTAN'S CRYSTAL DISCOVERY, admitted to be perfectly harmless, and yet accomplish all, and more, than the poisonous articles claim to do, should have increased so rapidly. It restores the color and growth of the hair positively in a few days; strengthens the roots, makes an excellent dressing, softening neither clothes nor scalp; but on the contrary it gives the scalp a pure and cleanly look, removing all dandruff and scurf. It is the most economical preparation in use. Put up in large bottles, at one dollar.
